STUDIO

The studio is generally booked on an hourly, daily or lock-out basis, as defined below. We will consider work on a “project” basis for a fixed price. All bookings are subject to the Payment Policies noted below.

Staff Engineer. The studio can be booked with or without us providing an engineer. Many sessions bring their own technical people, which is completely fine with us. Obviously, lower rates would apply. It is assumed that if book without the need of one of our staff engineers, that your engineer is knowledgeable and qualified to work in our facility. Minimal assistance will be available in such situations.

Hourly. Minimum two-hour booking is required for any tracking or mixing session. A one-hour (1) minimum is required for bookings for tape/CD copy and/or editing.

One Day. Defined as eight (8) full hours, with no guarantee of additional hours. If the session runs longer than eight (8) hours, overtime will be charged at the hourly rate. Break time is not included in computation of time used during a session.

Lockout. This type of booking is the best, most economical choice when several days of studio time are required. You have exclusive use of the studio and gear – no one else will use the facility during your booked time, even if you are not there. In this situation, the artist/engineer does not have to break down the studio or change settings on the console and equipment. Therefore, it provides the most efficient manner in which to use time at the studio. Once underway, you can then record/mix uninterrupted for however many days you are booked for without the need to reset up each day.

Single Day Lockout. Defined as a period of twenty-four hours, beginning at booked start time and going no later than 8:00 AM of the day following the last booked day. Includes up to twelve (12) hours of recording/engineering time each day if using our staff. Additional daily staff hours may be purchased at a reduced rate. However, arrangements must be made in advance to be sure that staff is available for coverage. Break time is not included in computation of staff time used during a session. Consecutive days of lockout are contiguous around the clock, going no later than 8:00 AM of the day following the last booked day.

Weekly/Monthly Lockouts. A lockout is defined as seven (7) consecutive days and thirty (30) consecutive days respectively. Beginning at booked start and going no later than 8 AM of the day following that last booked day. Includes up to twelve (12) hours of recording/engineering time each day if using our staff. Additional daily staff may be purchased at a reduced rate. However, arrangements must be made in advance to be sure that staff is available for coverage. If you are providing your own engineer, you can go as long as you like. Break time is not included in computation of staff time used during a session. Consecutive days of lockout are contiguous around the clock, going no later than 8:00 AM of the day following the last last booked day.
